

London – February 2019

Paper over the crax is delighted to announce that CyberIQ and Excalibur Global Managed Services has signed a partnership agreement to resell the CyberIQ Risk Score, a cyber risk assessment service designed to identify and protect small and medium size businesses from threats.

Commenting on the new partnership, Andrew Carr Founder and Managing Director at paper over the crax comments, “CyberIQ has a unique market offering providing insights into absolute and potential threats in an automated and affordable manner helping to secure supply chains and businesses from imminent threats and provide actionable information to manage risk. We continue to look for strategic partners that want to deliver value to their customers”

Ian Clarke, CEO of Excalibur Global Managed Services comments, “We have been looking for an affordable and effective cyber risk assessment tool to offer our small and medium size clients for some time. CyberIQ Risk Score fits that requirement perfectly, providing senior management and Board level Executives with regular assessments of the cyber threats to their business. EGMS is delighted to be partnered with CyberIQ to provide an innovative tool that helps support SMEs in the early detection and management of cyber threats”.

Bruce Armstrong, CEO of CyberIQ comments, “We are excited to have a partner with the experience and reach of EGMS representing CyberIQ in their markets. Cyber threats and risks are top of mind for business today. By delivering early detection through our services we can reduce the risk and make the connected world a safer place. EGMS can help us deliver these services to more businesses that are at risk.”

For more information please contact info@paperoverthecrax.com or contact Andrew directly on 0044 7966 825033.